BATE, HOUSE, PILLOW.

Matchless Oratory Heard Yesterday at Woodlawn.

The Campaign Opened in the Western Portion of the County and a Great Day the Result.

All roads seemed to point to Woodlawn yesterday, and the voters from four different districts all seemed bent on one common duty—that of hearing the speakers who were announced for the occasion and to eat free barbecue.

Woodlawn is situated in the north-west corner of the Eighth district. To the north and almost touching the village lies famous No. 4. West of the place is the Ninth, and south the Twenty-first is in hailing distance.

It was a happy thought on the part of the executive committee in changing this appointment from Oakwood to Woodlawn. A better place could not have been selected in the whole western portion of the county for the speaking, as was evidenced by the large crowd that was assembled to meet the speakers.

It was the first rally that had been held on the north side of the river, and the people were thirsting for the gospel. They flocked from every quarter, and a significant fact was that they gave the speakers the closest attention. They drank in the democratic truths that fell from eloquent lips and cheered as they drank it. There has not been a more attentive crowd gathered together in this county, and right here it is in order to add, by way of parenthesis, that the report which has been circulated to the effect that the country tributary to Woodlawn belongs body and soul to the Third party, libels the good people of that portion of the county. They are Democrats, and the way they climbed over each other to shake hands with Gen. Bate, the old war horse, would have given Third party leaders the shivers.

But to the point. Gen. Bate and Hon. Ernest Pillow arrived in the city Monday night, and early yesterday morning they were taken in hand by Judge Tyler and others and driven in surreys, accompanied by a band of music, to Woodlawn.

Gen. Bate was introduced to the crowd first and spoke about two hours. He made a Democratic speech from start to finish. He reviewed the prosperous times the country enjoyed before the war under Democratic rule, and then took up the record of the Republican party from Lincoln's inauguration to the present, and held it up to view in such a convincing and eloquent manner that men shouted themselves hoarse and renewed their allegiance to Democracy. It was a grand presentation and did incalculable good for the Democratic ticket. At the close of the speech a regular hand-shaking took place. Men who had worn the gray for four long and bloody years crowded around the old warrior and grasped his hand, telling him that they believed every word he said and that they would support the ticket.

Dinner was here announced, and after every man, woman and child had been filled with good barbecue, more speaking was on the program.

Col. House was introduced. He began by saying that when the band played "Dixie" a few minutes before his mind went back to the days when he had heard the same grand old tune amid the rude shocks of war. It also carried him back to the day he returned from that war without a dollar in his pocket, a ragged Confederate soldier, but thank God a free American citizen. He could never blot those days from his memory, and it was with the deepest pang of regret that he now saw men who fought under the same flag running off after principles that were false and could never profit them anything. Col. House then took up Buchanan's record and tore it to shreds. He minced no words in this job, and if there was a Buchanan man in hearing of his voice he must have wanted the curtain to open and swallow him. "Gov. Buchanan says he has been badly treated," said the speaker. "The Democratic party took him from between the plow handles, a noble calling, and from the business end of a mule and sat him in the gubernatorial chair. He has now belied the party that thus honored him and is running on a platform of his own. Who does he represent? The facts are that he called his own convention, elected himself chairman and secretary, enunciated his own doctrine and made the nomination unanimous. He is playing a lone hand, and I let me tell you, fellow citizens, he will be the worst cuffed man in the State on election day." Col. House reviewed the Alliance movement from its inception down to the time it was made a political organization, and later when it was captured by scheming demagogues for their own emolument. These men, he said, care nothing about the Alliance, or the farmer, further than the money and political preferment their positions bring them. Speaking of the Subtreasury, he thought the scheme was to convert the county into one gigantic warehouse. One corner was to be at Woodlawn, one at Palmyra, one at Betsytown and the other one about Port Royal. He thought, however, that this had all about fallen through, as he heard nothing of it now from Third party orators. Col. House further discussed the questions involved in the national contest and closed his speech with an eloquent appeal to his hearers to support the Democratic nominees.

Hon. Ernest Pillow, of Marshall county, was the next speaker, and he made one of the best speeches of the campaign. He told his hearers that he had come into the county at the suggestion of the executive committee. He began by paying an eloquent and feeling tribute to Montgomery county and her sons who have made their State famous in the days that are gone. When but a boy he represented his county in the Legislature. He was proud to say that he voted for an honored son of Montgomery county for United States Senator, as long as his name was before that body, and had the contest continued until now he believed he would have still been casting his vote for Jas. E. Bailey. He had stood entranced by the matchless eloquence of Gustavus A. Henry, the "Eagle Orator," of Tennessee for hours, and he remembered that this great man had claimed Montgomery county for his home. When a boy, too small to be noticed, he had listened to Democratic truths eloquently proclaimed by Hon. Jno. F. House, and he thanked God he had heard them again from the same lips, as true and eloquent as ever. Mr. Pillow then went into the discussion of the questions at issue in the present campaign and held his audience enraptured by his matchless oratory. Mr. Pillow is a young man of fine physique, and very pleasant address. He has a fine command of language, and a remarkably fine voice, is sublimely eloquent at times, and in the realm of humor he rivals Bob Taylor. He is a born campaigner, and is capable of doing valuable work for his party. He made a fine impression here and will be welcomed back at any time. Mr. Pillow told his hearers that he had just been defeated in his district for Congress in primaries, by Hon. Jas. D. Richardson. He did not feel that he had been "badly treated" and that he would be the first man in his county to cast his vote for the nominee. He admonished all people to vote the Democratic ticket from end to end, and closed his speech amid tremendous applause.

After Mr. Pillow had taken his seat, calls were made for Mike Savage. This gentleman spoke only a few minutes, as the hour was late, and he was suffering from hoarseness brought on by his Robertson county campaign. He, however, is solid with the people in that part of the county and will get the full vote.

The day was a great one for Democracy. The speaking was the best that has been heard in the county for many years and converts were made for the Democratic ticket. The Dover road was shaken to its bottomless depths and Democrats are springing up everywhere. The people of that section have the thanks of the executive committee for their close attention and for making the occasion a grand success. Gen. Bate, who should be a good judge, estimated the crowd at from 1,000 to 1,200.

A Cure for Cholera.
There is no use of any one suffering with cholera when Chamberlain's colic, cholera and diarrhoea remedy can be procured. It will give relief in a few minutes and cure in a short time. I have tried it and know—W. H. Clinton, Helena, N. J. The epidemic at Helena was at first believed to be cholera, but subsequent investigation proved it to be a violent form of dysentery, almost as dangerous as cholera. This remedy is used there with great success. For sale by Owen & Moore, Druggists.

BROWN-NEBLETT.
A Very Pretty Wedding Last Evening at the Methodist Church.

The marriage of Mr. Walter R. Brown and Miss Mattie Neblett was solemnized at the Methodist church last evening by Dr. Harrison, of McKenzie. The church was crowded with the friends of the contracting parties to witness the ceremony.

At the close of the same Mr. and Mrs. Brown were driven to the home of the groom's uncle, a few miles east of the city, where an elegant reception was given in honor of the event. The reception is said to have been an elegant affair and was enjoyed by a very large number of guests. The young couple start out in life under the most favorable prospects, and they will have the best wishes of many warm friends for their happiness and prosperity.

Is Marriage a Failure?
Have you been trying to get the best out of existence without health in your family? Have you been wearing out your life from the effects of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and Indigestion? Are you sleepless at night? Do you awake in the morning feeling languid, with coated tongue and salivary, haggard looks? Don't do it. A shout in the camp tells how Aunt Fanny's Health Restorer has cured others; it will cure you. Trial package free. Large size 50c, at Tushope Drug Co.

An Additional Appointment.
The Legislative candidates have made an appointment to speak November 5 at Central Chapel. To-day they are speaking at Sango and will be at Shady Grove. To-morrow they all go to Williams Chapel and will speak at night at Little Hope.

Shortsightedness.
To waste your money on vile, dirty, watery mixtures, compounded by inexperienced persons, when you have the opportunity of testing Otto's Cure free of charge. Why will you continue to irritate your throat and lungs with that terrible hacking cough when Tushope Drug Co. will furnish you a free sample bottle of this great guaranteed remedy? Hold a bottle of Otto's Cure to the light and observe its beautiful golden color and thick, heavy syrup. Large packages and purest goods. Large bottle 50c.

The First Tobacco Sale.
The first crop of tobacco sold in this county, of the new crop, is reported to-day. It was purchased from W. B. Dunlop by his brother Matt, and the price paid was six and one-half cents round. The crop is a large one and is said to be a very fine one.

Worth Knowing.
Many thousand people have found a friend in Aunt Fanny's Health Restorer. If you have never used this great specific for the prevailing malady of the age, Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Costiveness, Nervous Exhaustion, Nervous Prostration, Sleeplessness and all diseases arising from derangement of the stomach, liver and kidneys, we would be pleased to give you a package of this great nerve tonic free of charge. Tushope Drug Co.

Meets Here Next October.
The fourth annual State Missionary Convention of the Christian church will assemble in this city next October.
